Latent Repressed Homosexual Feelings
Homophobia is an irrational fear and thus Homophobia is a Mental Disease

The sign of a latent homosexual (a secret inside homosexual) is over reaction to seeing homosexuals. Studies show that the extreme homophobic is aroused when he sees homosexual sex. His verbal mind denies the reaction of unconscious body. This denial then pushes the person to further conflict. They need to convince themselves and their friends that they are not homosexual. So they resort to violent outburst to try to convince others they are not gay.

There were protesters during the Mr. Gay Europe celebration of which I was the hostess for 2007 and 2008. Some latent homosexuals asked people to come and throw eggs at me. I put up a sign that said “Only a latent homosexual would throw an egg”. No one threw an egg. Mr. Gay Europe was successful. But there was blood on the streets. I made several movies about this conflict and wrote several letters about this to help our society to end this conflict, but the media will not post such letters. The latent homosexuals at the news media do not want people to see the story about latent homosexuals. The media is once again not really covering news but twisting.

The symptom of latent homosexuality is over reaction to seeing homosexuals. This is a medical fact. The more you don't like it, the more that you are unconsciously latent homosexual. If you see a homosexual and it makes you angry, I mean very angry, it is undeniably a sign of a hidden latent homosexual fear in you. The more you react the deeper the latency. This is unconscious and a deep fear within. That is why it provokes such overreaction. This is medical psychological fact. Over reactive protest are all a sign of emotional and often sexual insecurity.

Homophobia Associated with Penis Arousal to Male on Male Sex
Published on June 9, 2011 by Nathan A. Heflick in The Big Questions

Even a man who thought that women want to have sex with their fathers, and that women spend much of their lives distraught over their lack of a penis is right sometimes. This person, the legend that is Sigmund Freud, theorized that people often have the most hateful and negative attitudes towards things they secretly crave, but feel that they shouldn't have.

If Freud is right, then perhaps men who are the most opposed to male homosexuality have particularly strong homosexual urges for other men.

One study asked heterosexual men how comfortable and anxious they are around gay men. Based on these scores, they then divided these men into two groups: men that are homophobic, and men who are not. These men were then shown three, four-minute videos. One video depicted straight sex, one depicted lesbian sex and one depicted gay male sex. While this was happening, a device was attached to each participant's penis. This device has been found to be triggered by sexual arousal, but not other types of arousal (such as nervousness, or fear - arousal often has a very different meaning in psychology than in popular usage).

When viewing lesbian sex and straight sex, both the homophobic and the non-homophobic men showed increased penis circumference. For gay male sex, however, only the homophobic men showed heightened penis arousal.

Heterosexual men with the most anti-gay attitudes, when asked, reported not being sexually aroused by gay male sex videos. But, their penises reported otherwise.

Abstract
The authors investigated the role of homosexual arousal in exclusively heterosexual men who admitted negative affect toward homosexual individuals. Participants consisted of a group of homophobic men (n = 35) and a group of nonhomophobic men (n = 29); they were assigned to groups on the basis of their scores on the Index of Homophobia (W. W. The men were exposed to sexually explicit erotic stimuli consisting of heterosexual, male homosexual, and lesbian videotapes, and changes in penile circumference were monitored. They also completed an Aggression Questionnaire (A. H. Buss & M. Perry, 1992). Both groups exhibited increases in penile circumference to the heterosexual and female homosexual videos. Only the homophobic men showed an increase in penile erection to male homosexual stimuli. The groups did not differ in aggression. Open Letter:

The major issue for the gay world today is truly homophobia. As a qualified Psychologist and world renowned medical doctor, I am a qualified expert and author on Brain Physiology and Human Behavior. I can offer a very valuable solution to the problem of Homophobia.
Since my life as a man (Licensed Health Care Clinician) in America, I have now left America to find freedom, and I am no longer a man. For I choose now to live my life as a woman.

A Big Head Choice.

Seven to ten percent of the human population is born left handed. The choice of handedness takes place in the brain, not the hand. All People have both hands, but tend to choose one more frequently. This is called the preference or dominance of hand choice. The choice of handedness takes place in the brain not the hand.

A long time ago people killed left handed people. Not now, for we now know that these people are just different, and even though the bible has many references against the left handed, it is possibly colloquial. We have learned not to fear someone who is different at least not different in handedness.

Seven to ten percent of the human population is born with cross gender feelings or cross sexual preference. The choice of sexual preference takes place in the brain (the big head), not the penis (the little head). All People have both sexual feelings, but tend to choose one more frequently. This is called the preference or dominance of gender choice. There are differences of the female brain and the male brain. Some men are born with a more female brain. Some females are born with a more male brain. It just happens. It is a scientific fact.

Our society today more than ever needs to think with the big head. If you look at marketing and the media we see too much emphasis on the little head. And we all know that the consequences of thinking with the little head seldom turn out well. In the animal world the phenotype differences of hand preference and sexual preference happen in a much smaller percentage, as to be negligible.

Spain is the first country in the world today to allow the true choice of sexuality to be made by the big head. If a man over 21 decides he is a women with his big head, if he can live as a women for over 2 years, he can become a women. She can change her passport from male to female. She can change her driver’s license and all documents and live as a women. There is

Homophobia is an irrational fear and thus Homophobia is a Mental Disease
Homophobia is an irrational fear and thus \textit{Homophobia is a Mental Disease} no need for surgery. The decision is for the big head. The little head can stay. Nobody sees it anyway. America allowed this in 2010 for passports, as the world grows beyond bigotry.

This applies for a woman who feels as a man as well. The choice of sexuality is a \textbf{BIG HEAD} decision and possession of a little head is of no import. As the bible says \textit{“as a man thinketh in his heart, So is he”}. Ancient Greece and Rome and many cultures allowed the choice of gender to be made from the big head. This recognizes a simple truth of biology, some people are born with both sexes. Hermaphrodites and other variances happen.

It is a fact that 7 to 10\% of the people are born with cross gender brains. But only two percent of the population expresses this. That means that 5 to 8\% suppress or repress feelings.

In places such as Russia, Iran, Turkey, and other repressed societies, the percent of those expressing their emotionality is even much less. This is because of the social stigma of non-acceptance. Those born with a more emotional and female brain must hold back, repress and suppress their true nature and push their feeling down. They fear humiliation.

Thousands of years ago there was limited law and civilization. Men had to be strong of arms. They must protect the women. Women were seen as weak. You cry like a little girl we would say to a young sensitive boy to try to humiliate him into more manly being. All people fear humiliation. And those with a repressed suppressed inner secret fear it even more.

The implication was that being a women or even woman like was wrong or offensive. A man must not show his feelings. It is weak. It is like a women, immoral in some stupid way. Civilization and law have progressed to protect people. The world has changed.

With about half of the population of six billion people being men. Of the Three billion men there are then over 150 million men who are suppressing their sexual variance. Probably equal numbers of females, but females tend to be less violently expressive.

These frustrated, suppressed, and repressed latent homosexuals will be most angry, when they see a homosexual they will be incensed. They will be afraid, meaning they will be Phobic, Homophobic. This makes for overreaction. In some this produces drastic over reaction, Even violence. Only a suppressed repressed latent homosexual would resort to extreme retort.

The only thing that makes you over react to something is a hidden fault in yourself. The greater the reaction the greater the hidden fear of unleashing your own feelings. Most people are not over annoyed by homosexuals. Most people feel that what consenting adults do is their business. But the emotionally suppressed latent homosexual is driven to anger. Shakespeare said “The lady doth protest to much”. Meaning that an overreaction is the best tip off of a hidden or covered up truth. When people have an irrational fear such as homophobia, the illogical fear drives extra anger. They become secretly and often unconsciously angry at themselves. This inward directed anger builds up till it burst out as excessive homophobia.

The people of the world now know that over reactivity of homophobia is a sign of hidden latent homosexual feelings. After this statement becomes common knowledge people and your friends will be better able to see through your charade. This wisdom will allow people to detect latent homosexuals. Information that might extend to helping them resolve their anger. Any extreme or violent homophobia can only come from a repressed suppressed mind.

Male chauvinistic stupidity and pigheadedness makes homophobic hardheadedness intractable. Homophobia is an irrational fear. What are you afraid of? An irrational fear is a disease and as such needs to be treated before the mentally sick homophobe hurts someone. To address this I have made two movies What are you afraid of I and II to tell the story in detail. The main TV of Hungary TV1 came and interviewed me about the issue of Homophobia. They are given monies from the EC just for such TV programing the show was called “The Provocateur”. The host loved my interview but someone in the TV office lost the tapes. The host came back six months later and re-filmed the interview but the TV station once again lost the tapes. You see there are repressed latent homosexuals in the front office of all media companies and they do not want to be exposed. They do not want anyone to know that the person who laughs loudest at homosexual jokes or is out raged at homosexuals is possibly covering up or hiding a deep repressed feeling or secret.
Homophobia is an irrational fear and thus Homophobia is a Mental Disease

The list of examples is too long for me to now tell all. But leave it to say I find difficulty in expressing this information on the cause of homophobia. If the news was out that the sign of a latent homosexual is over reaction to homosexuals, then homophobia would be over.

I was the queen of the Sydney, Australia Gay parade in 2007. I am a leading gay person performer in the Hungarian press often. I run the largest gay night club in Hungary. I was the hostess of Mr. Gay Hungary and Mr. Gay Europe in 2007, 2008. During the Mr. Gay Europe competition there was excessive threats of violence. There was blood in the streets against gays. The leading homophobic wrote an e-mail to over five thousand to come and throw eggs at Desire’ Dubounet. I was singing just 13 meters from a public bridge. I put up a large sign saying that only a latent homsexual would throw an egg. There were witnesses seeing people read the sign and drop their eggs and tomatoes. No one threw anything. The sign worked, just as the message would work if the media would tell it. Not one non-gay press covered the sign story. There seems to be some cover up.

I am simply asking for some help in telling this story to the media. If the gay community would just provide some informal modest support for the story and My movies we could decrease homophobia. These times deserve clarity and Intellect to neutralize the wild ranting of a few repressed violent homophobics.

It is time for us to elevate the mind of our people and to think with the big head not the little head. The choice of sexuality and sexual preference is a big head decision for consenting adults. Over reaction is a sign of a latent homosexual.

BIG HEAD

There are over 190 countries in the World today. In 90 countries, almost half, some form of homosexuality is illegal. In 10 countries, less than a tenth, homosexuality is completely free and equal. In only one country is gender and sexual identity a true free choice of the big head not the little head. There are vast numbers of homosexuals living in fear, intimidation, humiliation, repressed, ridiculed, and often times facing death threats or even death. There is blood in the streets from latent homosexual violence against people that touch repressed feelings in them. Phobia is a fear. The homophobic does not really fear the homosexual across the street, he fears the latent homosexual deep inside himself. There is much work to be done. To assume that all is well is to ignore the truth, the highest form of IGNORANCE. Nonetheless this ignorance can be easily dealt through simple discussion. Simple exposure and education of the true reason for violent homophobia will do this. Movies such as this one can do this.

Most of the world sees homosexuality as a disease or a crime not just a simple variance of biology. The media of news and movies, music etc have stereotyped the homosexuals as laughable, effeminate, sissies unable to defend themselves physically emotionally or intellectually. Hollywood mostly displays homosexuals as pathetic comics. Hollywood and the news media perpetuate the inaccurate stereotypes and refuse to cover issues of freedom of choice. The Pope recently said that curing and ending homosexuality is more important than saving the rainforest. Attempts at the UN to decriminalize homosexuality are unsupported by Russia, China, and even America. The world is mostly unaware of the truths discussed in this movie, and the world’s media violently refuse to allow Desire to discuss such freedom. Homophobia in Hollywood and the world media fear exposure. They enjoy and trivialize the farcical pitiful pathetic comical stereotype.

Most gays are more concerned with drugs, abs, partying and sexual opportunity than helping the world to broaden its global mind. Self obsessed and somewhat satisfied with their own little world the homosexual population languishes and struggles to have real impact on the masses attitudes. The homosexual debate needs clarity, needs explanation, needs a champion, needs desire. But regrettably, Even the homosexual population refuses to support Desire. So efforts to get this story told are at present futile. Perhaps all of this will change and people can learn to let their BIG HEAD and be free to choose their identity in every fashion. Perhaps YOU might be prompted to care, to share, to dare, to tell others of this movie. Perhaps YOU might even be prompted to THINK.
Here's a recipe for homophobia, psychologists say: Mix repressed same-sex attraction with authoritarian parents. Simmer for 18 or more years.

College students who said they felt more controlled or pressured by their parents tended to have a greater discrepancy between their reported sexual orientation and their actual orientation as determined by a psychological test, researchers from the University of Essex, the University of California, Santa Barbara, and the University of Rochester (N.Y.) found.

And students who had the greatest sexual identity conflict -- young men and women who reported a straight identity while scoring highest on homosexual tendencies -- also exhibited a number of behaviors consistent with homophobia. They tended to report more negative or fearful attitudes toward gays and lesbians, tended to be biased against homosexuals in hypothetical situations, and were more likely to endorse anti-gay policies.

In many cases these are people who are at war with themselves and they are turning this internal conflict outward, co-author Richard Ryan, a professor of psychology at the University of Rochester, said in a statement.

The scientists described their results in a paper published last week in the Journal of Personality and Social Psychology.

The conjectured link between homophobia and unwanted homosexual tendencies has its roots in Sigmund Freud's description of reaction formation, a defense mechanism wherein a person overcompensates for emotions and impulses that cause them anxiety by aggressively pursuing the opposing tendency.
Homophobia is an irrational fear and thus Homophobia is a Mental Disease

Other researchers have unearthed physical evidence to support this theoretical framework. In 1996, the Journal of Abnormal Psychology published a study from three University of Georgia researchers who studied homosexual arousal in self-identified heterosexual men.

In this experiment, the researchers hooked the subjects' penises up to devices that measured the degree of their erections, and showed them pornography. All the men responded to videos of heterosexual and lesbian intercourse, but only the men that showed signs of homophobia based on a questionnaire developed erections in response to homosexual male coupling.

Homophobia is apparently associated with homosexual arousal that the homophobic individual is either unaware of or denies, the Georgia researchers wrote in 1996.

One of the challenges to studying repressed homosexuality is, obviously, how to identify same-sex attraction in someone who says they are straight. No technique is fool-proof.

In the current study, researchers used a technique to identify subjects' implicit sexual orientation that involved sorting words and pictures into gay and straight categories.

But before the subject began the task, he or she was primed with a subliminal message: The word me or others was flashed across the screen for a fraction of a second, long enough to be unconsciously perceived but too quick to be consciously noted.

The researchers then measured how long it took the students to sort the pictures into the categories. If a subject was quicker to identify words and pictures associated with homosexuality than heterosexual ones after being primed with me, their implicit orientation leaned gay.
There are other limitations to these studies, the authors acknowledge; all of the subjects in the four studies conducted no longer live at home with their parents.

It may be helpful to test these effects in younger adolescents still living in the home and in older adults who have spent a longer time away from parents’ influence, the authors wrote.

Study: Homophobes May Be Hidden Homosexuals

by Jeanna Bryner, Live Science Managing Editor  |  April 09, 2012 11:13am ET

An aversive reaction to photos of gay couples may stem from a person's authoritarian parents and their own inner conflict with sexual orientation, researchers have found.

Homophobes should consider a little self-reflection, suggests a new study finding those individuals who are most hostile toward gays and hold strong anti-gay views may themselves have same-sex desires, albeit undercover ones. The prejudice of homophobia may also stem from authoritarian parents, particularly those with homophobic views as well, the researchers added.

"This study shows that if you are feeling that kind of visceral reaction to an out-group, ask yourself, 'Why?''' co-author Richard Ryan, a professor of psychology at the University of Rochester, said in a statement. "Those intense emotions should serve as a call to self-reflection."

The research, published in the April 2012 issue of the Journal of Personality and Social Psychology, reveals the nuances of prejudices like homophobia, which can ultimately have dire consequences. [The 10 Most Destructive Human Behaviors]

"Sometimes people are threatened by gays and lesbians because they are fearing their own impulses, in a sense they 'doth protest too much,'" Ryan told LiveScience. "In addition, it appears that sometimes those who would oppress others have been oppressed themselves, and we can have some compassion for them too, they may be unaccepting of others because they cannot be accepting of themselves."

Ryan cautioned, however, that this link is only one source of anti-gay sentiments.

Hidden homosexuality

In four studies, the researchers looked at the discrepancies between what people say about their sexual orientation and their implicit sexual orientation based on a reaction-time test. The studies involved college students from Germany and the United States.

For the implicit measure, students had to categorize words and pictures flashed onto a computer screen into "gay" or "straight" groups. Words included "gay," "straight," "homosexual" and "heterosexual," while the pictures showed straight and gay couples. Before each trial, participants were primed with the word "me" or "others" flashed momentarily onto a computer screen. The researchers said quicker reaction time for "me" and "gay," and a slower association of "me" with "straight" would indicate said an implicit gay orientation. [Why Gay Parents May Be the Best Parents]

In another experiment, the researchers measured implicit sexual orientation by having participants choose to browse same-sex or opposite-sex photos on a computer screen.

Questionnaires also teased out the parenting style the participants were exposed to, with students asked how much they agreed or disagreed with statements such as: "I felt controlled and pressured in certain ways;" and "I felt free to be who I am." To gauge homophobia in a household, students responded to items such as, "It would be upsetting for my mom to find out she was alone with a lesbian" or "My dad avoids gay men whenever possible."

Do you think prejudices are passed on by parents?
Yes, parents play the largest role in kids' prejudices like homophobia.
No, society plays a bigger role.
No, people pick up their own prejudices from personal experiences.
Prejudice is in the genes, they're born that way.

Participants indicated their own level of homophobia, both overt and implicit; in word-completion tasks, students wrote down the first three words that came to mind when prompted with some of the words' letters. Students were primed at some point with the word "gay" to see how that impacted the amount of aggressive words used.

Controlling parents

In all of the studies, participants who reported supportive and accepting parents were more in touch with their implicit sexual orientation, meaning it tended to jibe with their outward sexual orientation. Students who indicated they came from authoritarian homes showed the biggest discrepancy between the two measures of sexual orientation.

"In a predominately heterosexual society, 'know thyself' can be a challenge for many gay individuals," lead author Netta Weinstein, a lecturer at the University of Essex in the United Kingdom, said in a statement. "But in controlling and homophobic homes, embracing a minority sexual orientation can be terrifying." [5 Ways to Foster Self-Compassion in Your Child]

Those participants who reported their heterosexuality despite having hidden same-sex desires were also the most likely to show hostility toward gay individuals, including self-reported anti-gay attitudes, endorsement of anti-gay policies and discrimination such as supporting harsher punishments for homosexuals.

The research may help to explain the underpinnings of anti-gay bullying and hate crimes, the researchers note. People in denial about their own sexual orientation, perhaps a denial fostered by authoritarian and homophobic parents, may feel a threat from other gay and lesbian individuals. Lashing out may ultimately be an indicator of the person's own internal conflict with sexual orientation.

This inner conflict can be seen in some high-profile cases in which anti-gay public figures are caught engaging in same-sex acts, the researchers say. For instance, evangelical preacher and anti-gay-marriage advocate Ted Haggard was caught in a gay sex scandal in 2006. And in 2010, prominent anti-gay activist and co-founder of conservative Family Research Council George Rekers was reportedly spotted in 2010 with a male escort rented from Rentboy.com. According to news reports, the escort confirmed Rekers is gay.

"We laugh at or make fun of such blatant hypocrisy, but in a real way, these people may often themselves be victims of repression and experience exaggerated feelings of threat," Ryan said. "Homophobia is not a laughing matter. It can sometimes have tragic consequences," as was the case in the 1998 murder of Matthew Shepard, a gay man.

Only 2% of the people express this variance of preference, leaving 5 to 8% of the people of the world (almost 500,000,000) that must suppress or repress their feelings.

They become homophobic.

- They laugh TOO. Too much at gays.
- They make TOO. Too many jokes.
- They get angry and violent when they see gays to hide their secret and divert attention from their sequestered dilemma.
- (Then they get jobs in the media to suppress this message)

But they must hide their feelings or their secret will get out.

Most of them suffer terribly and have violent torturous lives without knowing why.

WHAT ARE HOMOPHOBICS AFRAID OF?

Answer = THEMSELVES

Homosexuality is an accepted way of life.

Homophobia is a sickness and a way to hide one’s feelings.

Homophobes are turned on by homosexuality

By Bjørn Østman on 6/15/2011 01:36:00 PM

The authors investigated the role of homosexual arousal in exclusively heterosexual men who admitted negative affect toward homosexual individuals. Participants consisted of a group of homophobic men (n = 35) and a group of nonhomophobic men (n = 29); they were assigned to groups on the basis of their scores on the Index of Homophobia (W. W. Hudson & W. A. Ricketts, 1980). The men were exposed to sexually explicit erotic stimuli consisting of heterosexual, male homosexual, and lesbian videotapes, and changes in penile circumference were monitored. They also completed an Aggression Questionnaire (A. H. Buss & M. Perry, 1992). Both groups exhibited increases in penile circumference to the heterosexual and female homosexual videos. Only the homophobic men showed an increase in penile erection to male homosexual stimuli. The groups did not differ in aggression. Homophobia is apparently associated with homosexual arousal that the homophobic individual is either unaware of or denies. So, homophobic men are aroused by homosexual porn, and either they don't know it (hmmm), or they deny it (looking at you, Fred Phelps).

Abstract

This study investigated for the first time the relationship between internalized homophobia and shame in gay men. It also briefly re-examined the relationship between internalized homophobia and self-esteem in gay men. A sample of
Homophobia is an irrational fear and thus Homophobia is a Mental Disease

100 gay men from a variety of sources responded to three questionnaires and a demographic survey. Findings included a significant positive relationship between shame and internalized homophobia and a significant inverse relationship between internalized homophobia and self-esteem. Additional findings included significant correlations between seven variables and internalized homophobia and between six variables and internalized shame.

Homophobia is a sickness, while Homosexuality is viable and acceptable way of life. This is a true story and a historic movie that encourages the debate about homosexuality. If you’re homophobic, What are you afraid of?

I open up this movie with a true story. As a psychiatrist I was asked one time to help counsel 6 homophobic men who were put into jail because they had hurt innocent gay people in bars without any provocation. It opens with: “Gentleman, we are in Europe now, and homosexuality here is a normal, accepted way of life. Homophobia is an irrational thought-program. A sickness, a disease. I am here to keep you locked up until I know that you are not going to hurt anybody. But to achieve that, we have to talk. We have to debate. You can start by telling me: if your homophobic “What are you afraid of?”

The sign of latent homosexuality is over reaction to seeing homosexuals.
Homophobia is an irrational fear and thus Homophobia is a Mental Disease

Stand up comedy of Desire’ Delicious Dubounet. Proving the point that the sign of a latent Homosexual is over reaction to seeing gays. The medic will not cover this story for it would blow the cover of the latent homosexual working for CNN SKY, NBC, CBS etc. Desire put’s them in their place.

Times they are a changing, even in the media

Retired Navy SEAL Kristin Beck published a memoir titled Warrior Princess on Tuesday describing her 20-year military career and her experience coming out as transgender.

Beck was a member of SEAL Team 6, famous for carrying out the mission that killed Osama bin Laden, although she retired from the military shortly before the team was sent to Abbottabad, Pakistan in 2011. Previously, Beck went by the name Chris and decided to undergo hormonal therapy after leaving the service.

I AM WHAT I AM

Small Minds try to impose Labels and Judgements. The media does this to shorten their work and produce sensationalism. Our Arrogant Petty Society denies us choice and freedom by forcing and imposing labels and stereotypes.

Until our society accepts diversity, multiplicity, variance, difference, and free changing choice, we will wallow in destructive separatist xenophobia. To be free to choose and express positive ideas and conceptions, should be the basis for our society. It was the basis of our fore fathers law by the small petty lizard brains.

Let us return to the basis idea of freedom of choice and expression. Jesus taught us to ‘Judge Not’. Let us return to Jesus’s teachings...

The Athenian Lawmaker Solon decreed that is should be a law against anyone shrinking from controversy.

In America most have shrunken away and are fearful of controversy. They fear the law, the rich, and humiliation. They are told lies by the government and the puppet media, mislead by their educators, and manipulated by the Ultra Rich.

It takes massive courage to oppose and explore controversy and exercise freedom of thought and speech.

Solon would be saddened at today’s America. It is time for a change and time for COURAGE.
Homophobia is an irrational fear and thus Homophobia is a Mental Disease

Let's tell the world that homophobia comes from latent deep homosexual feelings, before more people are hurt by mentally unstable latent repressed homosexuals.
