Natural Trigeminal Neuralgia Energetic Treatment

What is Trigeminal Neuralgia?

Trigeminal Neuralgia (TN) is a chronic pain condition of intense pain in the face. Also known as prosopalgia, suicide disease, and fothergill's disease, the pain stems from the trigeminal nerve that sends information from the face to the brain. Mild facial stimulation, from putting on makeup to brushing your teeth, can cause intense pain; it is considered one of the most painful conditions to have. Attacks can start short and mild, but TN can progress to longer and more frequent episodes of pain.

The pain has been described as stabbing electric shocks, burning, pressing, crushing, exploding or shooting pain; and attacks typically affect just one side of the face at a time. The leading theory as to what causes this condition is a compression of the trigeminal nerve by enlarged blood vessels damaging the protective myelin sheath of the nerve. Other causes may be from aneurysms, multiple sclerosis, tumors, or lesions. TN is found more frequently in women over 50.

Alkaline Diet, Peppermint Oil

There is an interesting scientific paper in "Medical Hypothesis" 2002 Nov, 59 (5): Issue: "Are latent immediate-early genes of herpes-simplex virus-1 essential in causing trigeminal neuralgia. " Source: Biology Department, Medical University Syracuse NY. "Abstract: The etiology and pathogenesis of major trigeminal neuralgia remain largely unknown, but are believed to result from an irritative lesion near the semilunar ganglion. We suggest that its primary cause is a single, active DNA sequence in the persistent but non-integrated genome of latent herpes simplex virus type 1 commonly observed in a few infected A-delta nerve fibers in the cheek. Facial pain occurs as a result of herpes virus reactivation and when supplies of neurotrophins controlling normal transport functions of axolemmal ion channels become depleted."
The paper gives a theory as to causation although not a remedy. My suggestion is as follows which will kill viruses of all kinds.

A person who is seeing cases of mono, ear infections, sinus infections, cluster headaches, migraines and Bells Palsy might see this type of TN infection also. I gave my own personal experience in the Earth Clinic Bells Palsy thread. I further hypothesize that hormonal issues may be a trigger to the viral activation which might explain why females are more often effected than males.

A possible attack on the TN virus is to use a topical application of fifty drops of colloidal silver and add ten drops of DMSO to make it penetrate through the skin into the nerve. Apply as a poltice with a white paper towel and let it sit for fifteen minutes. Press against the paper towel to be sure the liquid absorbs into the skin. Be sure to use a white paper towel and do not have any other substances on your fingers. (The DMSO is a carrier, solvent and penetrant. ) Do this procedure at least six times over a two day period. In theory, the silver will kill the virus. Same procedure for Bells Palsey. Shingles too. God bless.

Acupuncture

Acupuncture is a treatment with the use of fine needles inserted into the skin along specific meridians in the body. These energy meridians are supposed to be the channels along which the energy or Chi in the body flows. Whenever there is a disturbance or obstruction in these meridians the free flow of the Chi gets affected causing various ailments. With the help of acupuncture these disturbances and obstructions are removed and the patient gets relief from the ailment. The holistic nature of acupuncture makes it one of the effective natural cures for trigeminal neuralgia.
Homeopathy

Homeopathy is another holistic method or treatment which works on the principle of 'like cures like'. Hence the substances which cause a certain problem in a large dose cure the same problem in the homeopathic preparations. However, homeopathy is a highly specialized science and you should not attempt self treatment. Always take the help of a professional homeopathic practitioner in order to gain benefit from this system.

Reiki

Reiki is a well known system of treatment with its roots in Tibet and is one of the popular natural cures for trigeminal neuralgia. Rediscovered by a Japanese doctor called Dr. Mikao Usui, this system makes use of the cosmic energy to heal various problems of the body and mind.

The Reiki practitioners undergo a procedure called attunement which makes them able to access the cosmic energy and channelize it. The practitioners of this healing system claim that Reiki not only works on humans, but also animals, plants and non living objects.
Cranial Sacral Healing

This is an alternative system of treatment that is becoming increasingly popular because it does not cause any harm even if it may not treat the problem effectively. The practitioners of this system follow the theory that the cranial and sacral bones vibrate at a certain frequency in harmony with each other. When this harmony is disturbed it causes various ailments. The treatment focuses on bringing harmony back to the vibrations of these two bones.

Indian Hemp in Facial Neuralgia.—Dr. Ruhrbaum, of Potsdam, has made several trials of the cannabis indica, in cases of facial neuralgia, with the most satisfactory results. In more than thirty cases great benefit was experienced, and many were entirely cured. Very delicate persons were seized with a little giddiness, lassitude in the limbs, &c.; others were affected in an opposite manner, and evinced great excitement, mirth and vivacity; but these respective symptoms disappeared after an hour or two, and left no unpleasant sensation behind them. The dose was from sixteen to twenty drops of the tincture, containing about one grain of the resinous extract.—Medizinische Zeitung.—Ibid.

Trigeminal Neuralgia

Are you okay?! Arrgghhh!

What does it feel like?

It feels like someone is stabbing me in the cheekbone, ear, and along my jawline with an icpick.

WELL...

It feels like someone punched me in my temple, above my ear, and it's so sore you can't touch it.

It feels like someone was yanking my hair out all right and now my scalp is so sore I can't even rub it or scratch it.

It feels like my ear is trying to rip itself off my head.

It feels like I accidentally...

...got my front teeth trapped in a zipper.

It feels like my eyebrow wants to climb to the top of my head and my jaw is going to shut itself closed forever.

Besides that though, Trigeminal Neuralgia isn't that bad.

Aloha the surgical decompression was temporary because the whole body needs to be decompressed, or the other vacuums will eventually suck the rest of the system back to a compressed state. The body is mostly a fluid, pressurized system as a whole.

Your client is in a delicate situation of cranial nerve inflammation. The world at present holds a somewhat reductionist and symptomatic view of the body, minus the most important animating, energetic factors.

Because of the factual unfortunate lack of true, whole understanding of the state of Hu-man function and the subsequent lack of technical ability to truly assist the body back to it's state of self sufficiency, I cannot recommend any compression therapies, which rules out the vast majority of therapies.

The key will be in gently guiding client to experiment in successful self management, as most therapies will induce micro trauma and still not rescue the system from the vacuum of pain and inflammation.

The liberation of the nerves from gravity is the key, but unless it can be achieved from within, by virtue of it's own organization, effects will be temporary.

You use the word attack. frequent in description..... Rule out psychic attack. It could be a factor as he deals with a lot of people and complaints.

Floating in water is a safe way to liberate the body from gravity. Ideally the whole nervous system should float weightless in the cerebral spinal fluids it produces / precipitates. I achieve this with my gentle but time consuming decompression technique.

Inflammation is imperative to be arrested as client cannot even chew. Have them experiment with cold to reduce inflammation. The nervous system is in a big knot from all of the continual suffering. Their will be spiritual and emotional factors to be addressed. Rule out chemical irritation as well. Are they addicted to caffeine. Do all possible to gently and gradually cleanse the system.

Once client has learned to begin to reduce pain with cold .... they feel less helpless psychologically and more in control. Client needs to regain control within themselves and not count on outside things to fix them . Client must mature in health responsibility and work as a team with appropriate professionals. This will turn the tide. I understand clients condition is of the most painful to endure of all. Be sure they have support structure of family or friends,.as it is a situation that self destruction is contemplated.

A similar technique to mine which is safe would be Dr. Don Glassys cerebral spinal fluid technique. Google his name and the website has a page of practitioners. His phone number is listed as well. You may want to ask him who he may recommend. Traditional cranial techniques are compressive and not many are adept. It's commonly known it's easy to make mistakes with common cranial work, why few choose to embark learning it. Dr. Glasseys technique is a bit safer and the next best thing to my gentle and comprehensive decompression.

Not ideal.to present for any therapy with any inflammation, anywhere as it is more risky conditions to work with inflammation and rupture cells. I do not touch clients until. They arrest inflammation. They agree in writing to continue to nurse inflammation to nothing after procedures. This way they have a degree of control themselves. Very important.

You can address emotional factors with evil, clear trauma from lifetime and begin o cleanse blood. Adjust cranial bones is a good option in biofeedback. Reduce inflammation in biofeedback. Reduce stress in spine & nerves. Their is a bells paalsy remedy you can give then the pain anodyne remedies.

An actual.decompression chamber is another option. There are now more available in private practices. Oxygen therapy is also suggested. Of course client breathing, focusing oxygen to areas of pain will.also help, especially with intelligent application of ice.
If it was me, I would be living with a rotation of soft ice packs until there is a change. Client is also most probably sleep deprived. Reduce inflammation and sleep will be first priorities. When nerve swelling is reduced, and can chew, then choose a therapy. Deal with nutritional deficiencies, most probably magnesium and b as indicated. It is unwise to move around much with such severe nerve irritation. The Scio is appropriate as it is gentle.

The skull and ideally whole spine will need to be decompressed to get client out of chronic state. The cerebral spinal Fluid technique or cranial sacral therapy by someone reputable is suggested. Ideally a wholistic practitioner who has a multi dimensional consciousness.

Is the client multi or 3D?

If client is 3D, it will be challenging to address all issues and guide them to a mature state of health responsibility. If client is unwilling to cooperate as a team, they may be stuck with their lessons

As this is a delicate affair, optimal client cooperation will yield optimal results.

Aloha holding a phone to the head is electromagnetic stress, especially on inflamed nerves. Suggest to shield the phone with tachyon or other shield .... Piece of black tourmaline. Maybe wear necklace of mineral that will absorb radiation. This may be a major factor. The cranial nerves are delicate and sensitive. Have client sit in a bath with radiation cleansing substance .... Seaweed .... Chlorox used to be used .... Google the things that will reduce radiation in a bath. Google what minerals shield radiation. There may be radiation points on the land where they live or at work. Explore this avenue as well plants and certain minerals can neutralize

* the Scio can also reduce radiation
