

Trademark Issues

It never ceases to amaze me just how silly stupid unprofessional people can think that a trademark is a permission to sell. Or that the trademark gives you the source code. Neither is true. The trademark is just for the name. And as you see from our trademark of the name Eductor (7-2012 http://oami.europa.eu/CTMOnline/RequestManager/en_print_NoReg) and our trademark for the word SCIO (for computer software, life teaching apparatus and instruments) we have trademarks. And of course we have more. With several registrations all over the world, we have the right software.

But most important of all is the source code. And I mean the operative, functional, legal compliant source code. This is the system that actually measures and stimulates in a cybernetic loop. In other words all of the device actual use and functions are here in our software from BHO only.

The world regulators only acknowledge the systems that are properly registered in our software database. If you have not properly registered and activated your software from the BHO pay pal website <http://www.qxsubspace.com/>, you do not have legal software. And it is most likely you do not have legal software. Please give your serial number to Geri at the BHO to check if you are legally registered in the proper real compliant database in the BHO system.

The screenshot shows the OAMI CTM-ONLINE search interface. The search results show one entry for 'EDUCTOR' with the following details:

Nice Classification:	9, 44	Status:	Registered
Name of the owner:	Mandelay Mo. Kft.	Publication of registration:
Applicant's reference:	MMO2012

If you go to the Europe online trademark site type in Eductor and you will see that in 7- 2012 Mandaly secured the trademark for Eductor we allow Scio International to use the Eductor name as Eductor Scio as long as they work within our contract to use only BHO paypal activated software

As you can see we at BHO have the trademarks, registrations, source code, validation and verification. All other of our partners do not have the ability to circumvent us, if you wish to review the contracts that clearly spell out the only way legal software can be attained from BHO please advise.
